Longer Hours; Idle Men

The employment situation in Canada presents a paradox. There is a keen demand for skilled labor, but an insufficient demand for unskilled labor. Men trained in trades which fit them for the making of munitions cannot be found in numbers large enough to man the machines, while men not trained as tradesmen are idle in thousands.

Surely it is possible to train some of these unskilled men sufficiently to enable them to do something in and around munitions plants and related establishments. Federal-provincial youth training schemes are doing splendid service in providing young men drifting into the unskilled labor force, for whom employment is never plentiful. A fair percentage of older unemployed men should be able in the course of a few months to fit themselves for one or other of the innumerable jobs involved in carrying out the nation-wide war production program.

But they cannot do this unless training facilities are provided for them. And in many cases prolonged unemployment has developed a helpless-complex that can only be overcome by persuasive urging.

Amateur Should Lay Off

As might have been expected, there are impatient demands in parliament and in the British press that Italy be given a knock-out blow. Because Italy is a young nation going well with the junior Axis partner, it is assumed it must be already "progeric" and would be disposed of quickly by some powerful punches.

This may be the case, but it may not be. The alternative possibility is not to be overlooked. This war may be a surprise for Mussolini, not to his military advisers, nor to the Italian people. It was planned years in advance, prepared for without regard to front and launched at a time when it was supposed to be favorable. The plans have gone awry, thanks to British resistance and Greek valor, and one and the same Italian forces have suffered severe reverses. But a trained fighter is seldom knocked out in the first round.

Mussolini has said he has seven million soldiers in reserve. It must be supposed he has reserved reserves of material in keeping. If, as it is not unlikely, Italy is to rally, collapse, pleasant as it is to hope for that.

It had better be left to Britain's military, naval and air commanders to handle the Mediterranean end of the war, while the British and American governments, through their ambassadors and politicians juggling their fawcetts. They have been doing pretty well thus far, but doing it without interfering with the fact that to arms to give Hitler the chance he is looking for to launch his invasion of Britain. Italy is no more a liability, not an asset, to the British. But it would become an asset if Britain organized a major offensive on that front at the cost of weakening its own defenses dangerously.

The "Why" Of It

Figures given at Washington show that during October airplanes to the value of more than $10,000,000 were delivered to Britain, though the manufacturers were allocated to deliver to the United States. In the month of November, Canada received planes to the value of less than $2,000,000, though deliveries up to $2,000,000 were authorized.

Planes, motorized vehicles and ammunition were delivered to Britain to the amount of more than $20,000,000, bringing the total for the first eleven months of the year to $134,000,000 plus, against deliveries authorized to the amount of $91,000,000. Of these deliveries of munitions Canada received slightly less than $3,000,000, bringing the total deliveries for the first eleven months up to about $22,000,000, against deliveries authorized of $14,400,000.

Deliveries of both planes and other equipment both to Britain and to Canada, show a remarkable gain over the average for the previous months, and heavy increases over the deliveries for September. But, in both cases shipped to both countries, there is an enormous surplus in the deliveries actually made and those which had been officially sanctioned. It is to be supposed the deliveries authorized were based on orders which had been placed, and therefore represent the needs as those were seen by the Governments at London and Ottawa.

This spread between the supplies wanted and those which were received explains the urge to speed up munitions production in Canada, leading in suggestion that the 40-hour week may be lengthened in Canadian plants and luxury-housing restricted in order to concentrate the production in the Dominion on war work. We may be sure there is no big gap between the munitions which Hitler ordered and those which he received from the factories in Germany and the occupied countries.

A Chance For The Public

The great majority of Canadians are not in the habit of buying Government bonds, for the sufficient reason that they have not a great deal of money to spare. Yet this explains, or helps to explain, why war savings certificates and stamps have not been selling as rapidly as they should have. Buying Government securities is something out of the ordinary for most people.

It has been the habit of the Government in the past to look to great financial corporations and wealthy individuals for money when they needed to borrow. And

From The News

By Harold L. Weir

Continued pressure brought to bear by Ottawa on Canadian cities to secure funds wherever it was possible to find them, to indicate that the people of this country are not making a very heroic effort to meet their obligations.

This does not purport to say that a considerable sum of money has not been poured into the war treasury. It certainly does not mean to deny that considerable sums of money have been raised by the public in the personal possessions of every one of us.

But, frankly, it does not seem to be a sufficient amount of money that has been raised to meet the needs of the war. It is more than something very horrible going on in a remote section of the world which affects us to no greater extent than it does our own country. It is something dreadful to shiver about.

It does not appear to have filtered through our consciousness that, whether we like it or not, we are mixed up intimately in a struggle that is either going to make us literally and actually slaves or open up for us and our children a damning vista of incredible new happiness.

It is not Britain's war or Germany's war or even the Empire's war. It is Canada's war.

Mr. Winston Churchill, who celebrated his 66th birthday Saturday, has told the British people that he brings them only "the bad news and good news."

What do we expect to get off any cheaper? Can blood and sweat and tears be counted in grudging terms of dollars and cents?

There has been a lot of bookish belly-aching about the "war effort." The Government does not seem to be doing what it should.

Who? With the exception of the young men and women who are permanently engaged in the active services, we are all going to be paid for our services. The Government does not seem to be doing what it should.

The ladies' club. The young men play at golf, and the ladies play at bridge. The fact is that the nation is not doing what it should. The Government does not seem to be doing what it should.

Perhaps many of us can do more, in a physical way, than we are doing. But at least we can take it seriously.

The fact is that, except for those who have sacrificed some beloved life to the defence of liberty, most of us are enjoying this war as a bloody spectacle that may be enjoyed from the safety of a comfortable chair.

We are still too big and comfortable and snug about the whole business. Not much has been done in the way of saving. We are still too big and comfortable and snug about the whole business.

Of course, none of the violence and destruction of the war has been seen. It's too bad that those hospitals and nursing homes and tenements crowded with women and children that have been bombed.

And isn't it a sin that all those beautiful churches should have been levelled to the ground?

The Tower of London, so ancient and picturesque, you know, and Westminster Abbey. It will be hard to repair that.

It was a tragedy about Coventry. What all those poor people who were killed, the Germans, and that Hitler fellow should be boiled in oil.

But it's so far away. Thank God it can't happen here.

There are potential bases in the North from which enemy raiders could swoop down a few hours.

If Hitler established himself in West Africa, he could raid the North American coast daily.

And they would come faster for one moment, the whole filthy bunch of them could be over in a few days.

And they would come with roaring, spinning planes as the skies of England have been.

This is the richest country in the world. Hitler's mouth waters when he thinks of it. It would be insanity to believe he does not think of it.

Non-Permanent Active Militia Trains In Snow On Sunday

Two companies of the non-permanent active militia on Sunday took to skis, turning out units of skiers each of 30 strong. Education Platoon (M.G.) went to the hills of the Municipal Links where they were taking movements in formation, travelling down hill and making turns. The instructor was Lt. Walter Laird, and second was Capt. Barker. Lt. Col. H. B. Johnson, commanding officer, was in the first line in the life, turned out with the unit and was congratulated on the success.

Skiers of the 24th Bn. Edmonton Regiment, split into two units, one going to the Municipal Links and the other to the Highlands golf course. Instructor was Lt. W. G. D. Palmer. Miles Palmer was in charge of the unit.

NEW PRESIDENT OF MEXICO TO BUILD DEFENCE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Mariano Avila Camacho took the oath of office as president of Mexico at 10:02 a.m. M.S.T., and received a tremendous ovation.

In his inaugural speech, Avila Camacho pledged "firm adhesion to the Monroe doctrine within the principle of the equality of all American nations" and declared "defence of the American is a common cause of all the countries" and that the continent, "united in the common cause, will be invincible." Applause greeted his declaration that Mexico is prepared to defend her own naval bases and to fulfill the role of the continental defence. Signifying United States interest in promotion of Mexican friendship for hemisphere unity, Avila Camacho was the presence of vice-president-elect, Gen. Henry A. Wallace, and an envoy named by President Roosevelt.

Two Escape Death In Car Accident

Proceeding to Edmonton at 7:30 p.m. Friday, an automobile and truck collided just west of Gravelly. The auto was thrown into a ditch and wrecked.

The owner of the car, C. Palfman, Edmonton, and a companion, W. H. Haintry, Edmonton, had a miraculous escape from death. Palfman escaped injury, while Haintry suffered cuts on the face and hands, and a contusion of the left shoulder. He is resting at home.

Residents of the Gravelly district were first aid to the victim.

SIDNEY SMITH PRESIDENT OF "NATIONAL Y.M.C.A."

Annual Meeting Held In Toronto—Calgary Man Vice-President

Dr. Sidney E. Smith of Winnipeg was re-elected president of the National Council of Young Men's Christian Association of Canada at the special meeting of the Council held in Toronto, E. E. Shaw, Halifax, Dr. L. E. Kesteven, Ottawa, and C. J. Ford, K.C., Calgary were re-elected vice-presidents and W. J. Haintry, Toronto, was returned as treasurer.

The 70 members of the council represented all parts of Canada. On Saturday the members of the National Council will hold a joint session with the National Service Committee of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada. There are 133 secretaries working with local associations with another 122 on the war service secretarial staff. R. S. Hocking, general secretary of the National Council, closed his review of the past year.

"There is a real change in our movement at this time," he said, "under our youth in the forces, in the factories, and in the public with certain ideas of the National Council in the Y.M.C.A. in Canada will meet the National Council in the Y.M.C.A. which will inevitably follow out of this."

Warm Clothing Required For School Children At Frog Lake

It's no joke having to walk in cold winter in winter in clothes that were meant, if they anything for the summer. And it's a great deal less funny if there's no hope of being able to get hold of winter attire for children, without outside help.

That's the position of a number of residents of the Frog Lake district. The children are unable to get to school, many of them, because of lack of warm coats, shoes, overalls, gloves, sweaters, underwear, etc., and as the winter wears on, and the weather becomes increasingly frigid, the situation will become more acute.

The Edmonton Emergency Welfare Bureau is appealing to the residents of the Frog Lake district, the mother of the family is a war widow with three children all under 16 years of age. All their belongings were lost and household effects as well as clothes are badly needed.

Persons willing to help in relief of these cases are asked to get in touch with the bureau, either by mail, or if no answer there dial 2433.

Police Depot Slumber Siege IS CONTINUING

George Rakyla, staging a one-man slumber siege of the police station, was back to spend the night and a third night at headquarters over the weekend.

Rakyla has been sleeping at the police station, either in the car or in a berth in the corridor, ever after being arrested on a vagrancy charge, which was warranted by his carrying a knife and a revolver.

BOY INJURED IN ACCIDENT ON ICY ROAD

Two Motor Car Mishaps Reported Here Over Week-End

Bobby Gross, 8, of 1140 87 street, suffered an injured back in a strange accident at 118 avenue and 88 street at 5:30 p.m. Sunday and police arrested a man who ran into two fences around private residence, after being routed a tree on the boulevard.

The Gross youngster was knocked down and pinned under the car of Kenneth Montgomery, 1027 12 street, after a second car, owned by Frank Holman, collided with the rear of the first car as Montgomery was attempting to avoid striking the child who was walking at foot pace on the boulevard.

Montgomery was proceeding west on 118 avenue when he saw the boy walking west on the south side of the road. Holman's car, a 1936 Buick, was attempting to avoid striking the child who was walking at foot pace on the boulevard.

The boy was caught between the car of Montgomery and the car of Holman. The boy was caught between the car of Montgomery and the car of Holman. The boy was caught between the car of Montgomery and the car of Holman.

Purchases By Neutrals In South America Being

Closely Watched

Business Aires, Dec. 2 (AP)—

A survey of Argentine commerce and agricultural sources included today that British goods are being sold in Argentina on credit terms, in an effort to keep supply lines from reaching their axis foes through neutral and third-party sources.

Well-informed sources said British economic experts were watching

for signs of a change in policy,

and that the British government was checking on purchases in Argentina

for signs of a change in policy,

Band Of Young Canadian

Pilots Distinguishing

Themselves Over Albania

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (UPI)—A sterling band of young

Canadian pilots, flying in a Royal Air Force bomber

squadron, have been distinguishing themselves in the war

Greek officials told me that the

Canadian pilots, flying in a Royal Air Force bomber
